St. Germain is a French liqueur made with fresh elderflowers, handpicked once a year in the late spring. As the world's first, finely crafted all-natural elderflower liqueur, its flavour is as subtle and delicate as it is captivating, evidenced in its sublime notes of peach, pear, and grapefruit, yet none of them exactly. Perhaps contributing to its elusive reputation is that of French savoir-faire - an inconspicuous ingredient that is all at once essential to St. Germain's endless charm.

The exceptional quality and taste of St. Germain is defined by the ephemeral elderflowers used to create it. To accomplish its exquisitely fresh and natural flavour, every bottle of St. Germain contains up to 1,000 of the very best elderflower blossoms, resulting in a finely crafted, perfectly balanced and refined liqueur.
