William Lowe MW - the world's first Master Distiller and Master of Wine - and his wife Lucy were inspired by walks through Cambridge meadows to make gins capturing English seasons. Each botanical is separately vacuum-distilled to capture its flavour precisely. This innovation extends into exploration of novel botanicals such as white truffle and ants, with Cambridge Distillery being thrice awarded most innovative distillery in the world. Cambridge Dry is their original and flagship gin, using botanicals sourced from around Lucy & William's home, including classic juniper, aromatic rosemary, basil and lemon verbena herbs, rose petals and blackcurrant leaves. The combination of herbs makes it a distinctly herbaceous, refreshing gin.
