Château de Laubade is an agricultural and winegrowing estate located in Sorbets, in the Gers, in the heart of the finest Bas Armagnac terroir. The 105-hectare estate in a single block around the château, built in 1870, has been in the Lesgourgues family for three generations. Today, Denis, assisted by his sister, Jeanne, and brother, Arnaud, continue their family's constant striving for excellence, with the aim of producing the most outstanding Armagnacs. The magnificent château has witnessed over 150 years of history and the Armagnac produced there has become a benchmark both in France and abroad. Château de Laubade, owned by well-known figures of the late 19th century, like the founder, Joseph Noulens, a great French statesman, and his wife, Jeanne Paquin, a famous fashion designer, has withstood the test of time, combining tradition and modernity. Today, the Lesgourgues family's legendary Armagnacs are created using ancient craft methods, while maintaining a constant spirit of innovation and environmental responsibility. A majestic 45 year old blend of 1977, 1978 and the remarkable 1974 Bas Armagnac vintage from the Ugni Blanc and Baco grapes. Selected and bottled especially to celebrate 45 years of Amathus.
