fruit, subtle salinity, and signature smoky depth to integrate fully. The result is a wine of profound intensity, with a texture that is rich, layered, and almost tactile, more gastronomic than aperitif, and a true expression of Dom Pérignon's dual mastery of blend and ageing. Dom Pérignon Rosé is produced only in exceptional years, and in far smaller quantities than the Blanc, making each release both rare and collectable. It is a Champagne designed not just to be drunk, but experienced, a study in balance between power and grace.
