Founded in 1943 by Santos J. Carelli, the Carelli winery lies on the plateau of Mendoza, adjacent to the foothills of the majestic Andes mountain range. In 1970, Enrique Carelli, son of Santos first-born son, decided to undertake an ambitious renovation of the winery expanding capacity and upgrading equipment.

In 1980s they acquired the Finca Libertad property, expanding production. Today the winery combines state of the art presses and tanks with the more traditional concrete vessels, allowing for a range of winemaking techniques to be used.

The vineyards are worked sustainably with several sectors under organic conversion. The vineyards include a home block which is used for a wide range of experimental plantings as the Carellis continue to push the boundaries of the region in the search for new styles. At the heart of the winery is a philosophy of making consistent wines with great varietal definition and local character at very accessible prices.
