Domaine Roger Belland is a fifth-generation family estate based in Santenay, with holdings across some of Burgundy's most prestigious appellations. The Les Cras lieu-dit in Pommard is known for its rocky, limestone-clay soils, which give the wine its distinctive grip and mineral backbone. The estate practices lutte raisonnée (sustainable farming), and grapes are hand-harvested at full phenolic ripeness. Fermentation occurs with partial whole bunches to add aromatic lift and texture, followed by élevage in French oak barrels, of which a modest portion is new, to support rather than dominate the fruit.
