Château Fleur Cardinale is a Grand Cru Classé estate situated on one of the highest elevations in Saint-Émilion, offering a sweeping view over a complex mosaic of clay-limestone soils. Since they purchased the estate in 2001, Florence and Dominique Decoster have been at the forefront of transforming the château into one of the appellation's rising stars. With significant investment in both vineyard and winery, the couple were instrumental in the property's elevation to Grand Cru Classé status in 2006, a ranking reaffirmed in 2012.

After thirty years spent in the porcelain industry in Limoges, owners Dominque and Florence Decoster acquired the château in 2001 and have invested heavily in it and fully immersed themselves in the life of the estate. Their hands-on approach and close work with the team have been key to the château's continued development. With a focus on precision and respect for the land, Château Fleur Cardinale began its conversion to organic farming in 2021, a natural progression in its commitment to sustainable viticulture.
