Aberlour Distillery, located in the heart of Speyside near the confluence of the Lour Burn and River Spey, was founded in 1879 by James Fleming, a local philanthropist and grain merchant. Fleming invested significantly in the community, funding local infrastructure such as town halls, hospitals, and bridges, while building a distillery that utilised pure spring water from St Drostan's Well. The site's water source, filtered through granite and peat from the Ben Rinnes Mountain slopes, is a defining feature that contributes to Aberlour's soft, rich whisky character.

Aberlour's whisky is primarily matured in a combination of ex-bourbon and sherry casks, with between 25% to 50% matured in sherry casks. This cask influence creates a complex interplay of rich dried fruits, spice, and sweetness characteristic of Speyside malts, balanced with malted barley's natural sweetness. Peat use is minimal, allowing the distillery's fruit-forward style to shine.
