Gilbert Family Wines is a leading name in Australian cool-climate winemaking, founded in 2004 by fifth-generation winemaker Simon Gilbert. The Gilbert family's connection to viticulture dates back to Joseph Gilbert, who was behind the first vine plantings in Eden Valley. Today, the estate is led by Simon and his son Will Gilbert, one of the country's most exciting young winemakers. Working side by side, the pair bring a balance of deep technical knowledge and intuitive winemaking, with a shared focus on purity, elegance and regional expression.

This Pinot Noir is sourced from high-altitude vineyards in Orange, New South Wales—the highest winegrowing region in Australia, with sites reaching up to 1,100 metres above sea level. The fruit comes from multiple clones grown across small, carefully managed plots. The cool temperatures and volcanic soils of the region, combined with significant diurnal shifts, allow for slow, even ripening and exceptional aromatic development. Grapes are hand-picked early in the morning to preserve freshness and vibrancy.
