Maison André Goichot is a medium-sized Burgundy negociant founded in 1947, and one of the few to remain family-owned and run. They work with purchased fruit alongside over 35 hectares of their own vineyards including Château de la Guiche in Montagny, and Château du Cray in Buxy. Today they're based in a smart, modern facility in the heart of Beaune. The talented Adrien Goichot heads up the winemaking team and has built strong relationships with growers across the region, allowing them to offer a range of appellations. Especially strong in the Cote de Beaune and Cotes Chalonnaise, they offer a range of wines from across the region, notable for their purity of fruit, smart winemaking and tactful use of oak, while retaining balance and freshness. They prefer to buy grapes rather than wine, giving Adrien total control over winemaking and ageing.

Rully 1er Cru Vauvry is a well located vineyard in Burgundy's Côte Chalonnaise, situated on southeast-facing slopes just over 1 km southeast of the village of Rully itself. Located on the lower slopes of Mont Palais, this 4.5-hectare site is renowned primarily for its Chardonnay. Rully is rapidly building a solid reputation for producing high quality whites which can rival those from the more famous villages to the north yet at substantially lower prices. This wine undergoes traditional fermentation in 20% new French oak barrels, where it remains for 10-12 months of maturation.

Enticing aromas of yellow plum, white flowers, struck flint and grilled nuts with a seductive, creamy texture. Engagingly long and satisfying; a high quality Chardonnay by any measure.
