Jane Anson.

Jane Anson – 95/100.

Inky ruby in colour, muscular tannins with tons of dark fruit. The oak integration on the palate is next to perfection: vanilla, cloves, charred wood, toast that becomes even more dominant across the palate. Mint. Acidity is slightly restrained by grippy tannins, but the freshness comes through in a mint-leaf finish, tapering to softer fruit and oak spices. 65% new oak, Jean-Charles Cazes owner, harvest October 12–18.

The Wine Independent.

Lisa Perrotti-Brown – 95/100.

Medium to deep garnet colored, the 2012 Lynch-Bages offers broody notes of fried herbs, tar, and tobacco to begin, leading to a core of cassis and stewed cherries with a hint of cast-iron pan. The medium-bodied palate is firm, grainy, and refreshing with plenty of restrained youthful black fruits, finishing with a lively lift.
