Cantine Bosio, founded in 1967 by Angela and Egidio, produced their first wine from vineyards nestled amongst the hills of Langhe. Today, the winery has expanded to work with a number of trusted local growers alongside their own vineyards. Wines are made from across the Langhe region, yet still vinified in small parcels to maximise quality. The wines display great varietal character while being made in a modern, accessible style. The Bosio wines are some of the best value from Piemonte.

The vineyards are located in the villages of Neive and Barbaresco on clay-limestone soils.

Following a brief, warm vinification, the wine was then aged for 2 years in oak barrels and an additional 6 months in bottle.
